

A story about a little girl with a big imagination

Nia was a little girl who had a big heart and incredible imagination. Most girls these days don't have such a great fantasy but Nia was a very special girl. She could think about things and come up with stories that made life more colorful and fun. She really wanted to understand better things that she observed. That's why she was using her imagination to guess who people are. Other times she fantasized about things that are not real because she liked how it feels!

Nia actually had two sisters, Eva and Rose. Her older sister though left town to go to school. Sometimes Rose visited the family and these were the best times for Nia because she loved her older sister and liked to play with her.

Now when only Eva was at home Nia often dreamt about being close to her sister Eva. Close like sisters should be! But Eva was not willing to hang out with Nia all the time and preferred to stay in her room and play videogames. This made Nia very sad and lonely.... Was she asking for too much?

Friendships were also very important for Nia. Because she was a very emotional girl she felt deeply the good and down times with friends. She was the happiest when she felt close to her best friend.

Nia sometimes felt sad and worried that she is lonely. She wanted to have good friends but she sometimes she felt she does not.... She was not sure if she is likeable and if other kids would hang out with her.

Nia also worried that she sometimes says things to other kids that she does not mean to say.... She felt so guilty after that!

As I already mentioned Nia had an incredible imagination! She had few fantasy friends that no one else could see. These friends helped Nia to sleep at night, kept her company during the day and sometimes sat next to her in class. They were reliable because they always came when Nia needed them.

Nia's mom Jane was very caring and wise mother. She noticed that Nia might need some help and talked to Nia about her worries. She promised Nia to help her. Jane decided to help Nia make good friends and moved her to a new school. At the new school Nia felt happier and although she knew that she needs to work hard to have friends, she felt motivated to do well. Jane also planned helping Nia to have better relationship with her sister.

Nia felt understood by her mom and hopeful about her future. She had fantasies about a better world that she lives in.

A world full with friends, joy and love....
